MARY'S LITTLE LAMB.

The following is the Chinese version of Mary and her lamb:

Wool name Moll had lamb, Eyes all same white snow, Every place Moll had walk, Be she hopped long too.

We heard a son of Erin trying to surround Mary and her little lamb the other day, and this is how he understood it: Begony, Mary had a little sheep, And the wool was white intoly; An' wherever Mary w'd stir her stumps, The young sheep would follow her completely.

So celebrated a poem should have French version:

La petite Marie had le June muttons, Zo wool was blancher as le snow; An' everywhere la Belle Marie went, Le June muttons was sure to go.

Oui, monsieur; vous avez un very large imagination; mais comment est this, pour Deutsche:

Dot Mary hat got ein leede schaf; Mit hair just like some wool; Und all der place dot gal did vent, Das schaf go like ein fool.

Mrs. Franklin's Version of the Killing of Volante in Pawtucket.

From the New York Sun.

Mrs. Jennie Franklin, advertised as "the daring shot, and principal in the terrible catastrophe and innocent killing of a woman on the stage in Pawtucket," stepped on the stage of Tony Pastor's theatre, at the matinee yesterday, gun in hand. She is five and a half feet in stature, and lithe and straight as an Indian. A blue velvet cape, knotted to her shoulders with ribbons, hung jauntily down her back, leaving her arms free. Blue short skirts, snow-white tights and blue leggings adorned the rest of her graceful figure. Before she shot Volante, a little more than three weeks ago, her cheeks were rosy and she weighed 137 pounds. Now she weighs 119 pounds and her cheeks are pale.

Mrs. Franklin's twenty-nine-pound gun was held with the steadiness of a Creed-moor rifleman. Her husband fastened apples on the face of a target, and she split them in two with bullets. She extinguished a lighted candle and broke a clay pipe. The range was the width of the stage. At last turning her back to the target, she pointed the gun over her shoulder, and taking aim over the reflection of the gun in a mirror, at the reflection of the apple-missed. She tried three times without success, and then bringing her gun to an order arms, with an angry pout, bowed and returned the spectators' applause.

"I could have hit the apple," she explained in the green-room, "if the audience had kept still. Just as I was raising the gun I could hear people say—

"That's the shot she killed Volante in."

"I had to miss then. I can hear what people say if it is only a whisper in the back part of the room. Then some ladies in one of the boxes made remarks about me. I want people to know one thing that I never shoot below the mark. If I miss, the bullet always goes above it. I think Volante must have breathed so (drawing a long breath) after getting off the trapeze that night, and that threw her head up. I laughed when she fell, and sat on the floor with her hands on her knees; I thought she was making believe, as she had done before, to scare the audience. Then I said: 'My God! I went over to her, and I knew at once that the bullet had come out again. I saw a few drops of blood under the hair just over the forehead. The wound in the forehead where the bullet went in didn't bleed. I wanted then to wash her head and let her go to sleep, but the doctor inserted a probe, which cut the principal vein that carries the blood all through the head. The blood came out in a stream, and it continued to bleed. They wouldn't believe me when I told them that the bullet had come out, but they had to afterwards. It was I that cut the hair away from the wound where it came out. I attended her, and when her side was paralyzed she tried to talk to me, but she couldn't shape her lips to speak the words. She would take my arm in her left hand and draw me to her, and when I stood close beside her, leaning over her bed, and would put up her hand and raise her left eye so that she could see me.

A Little Romance.

Louisville Courier-Journal: A very interesting little romance came to light in this city a short time ago, in which George Keats Gwathmey, a nephew of the poet Keats, takes the prominent part. George Keats Gwathmey, is a son of Mr. George Gwathmey, deceased, who was, some thirty years ago, cashier of the bank of Kentucky, in this city. His mother, was, before her marriage, Georgina Keats, whose father, George Keats, sixty years ago came to Kentucky, and settled in the place where Louisville now stands. When only a few years of age he was left an orphan, his father leaving an ample fortune in trust for his son. When George became old enough to attend school he was sent to the best conducted ones in the country, and early distinguished himself in such a manner that a great future was promised for the young student. When about fourteen years old his whole nature seemed to change, and instead of being known as the student and model boy, he came to be known as the worst among his associates. He was known far and wide as the incorrigible bad boy. His whole time was employed in inventing unheard of atrocities, each wilder and more shocking than the last. Some members of his family, thinking that a short experience in the naval service might cure the young man of his pranks, got him an appointment, and he went to sea. It is said he deserted, and when caught was pardoned by the President, his family having great influence in Washington at the time. In the year 1865 he disappeared, and in a few years his family gave him up for dead.

A few weeks ago the property of his father, George Gwathmey, was divided between his father's two sisters, Mrs. Poin-dexter and Mrs. Fry. The latter lady had been dead by any means, but since his disappearance has been traveling in Europe and Asia, and was for some years on the Pacific coast.

The strange phase of the whole story is that he seemed to know nothing of the fortune that has been lying for so many years untouched. He was written to immediately, and with no doubt, shortly made his appearance in Louisville. The courts have declared him dead, and it remains a point to be seen what action they will take in the matter.

Our Milling Industry.

The milling industry of the United States ranks next to the great iron interest in point of magnitude. Unlike the iron industry, however, it is not confined to spots here and there throughout the country, but is spread over the entire land. The flour mills number over 25,000, employing over 60,000 men, who are paid annually in wages about $20,000,000. The yearly production of these mills is nearly 50,000,000 barrels of flour, of which about 4,000,000 are exported to foreign countries. Pennsylvania has the largest number of mills, numbering nearly 4,000. This State next stands New York with nearly 3,000 mills. Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Mississippi,

North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Tennessee have over 1,000 each. Other States range from 700 down to less than a hundred. Some of the largest milling States, such as Minnesota, Michigan, Iowa and Illinois, while they have not proportionately so many mills, employ the greatest average of men. This is accounted for by the greater number of merchant mills and the larger mills there found.

—There will be a meeting of the Red Ribbon Club, this evening, at 7:15, sharp, at Eale's Hall, to hear the report of the committee on club room. The session will be very short, so as to enable any one to see the elephant under Burr Robbins' spacious canvas.

—John Nightingale, a twelve-year-old son of Thomas Nightingale, in the employ of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company, while playing ball in the First ward yesterday afternoon, was pushed down by another boy named Charles Hanson, and fell so that his left arm was broken at the elbow. A few months ago he had the misfortune to break his right arm by falling down stairs in Knowles' store.

—The Bowery City Band stand ready to give open air concerts this summer if they can have any financial encouragement. They do not care to make money out of the proposed enterprise, but of course it is no more than fair that they should be paid something for the time and expense of purchasing music, &c. If the citizens will show a little public enterprise in this matter, it can be pushed forward to an enjoyable success.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

In the Circuit Court to-day the case of Mary Harlow vs. Ward Witham was on trial. The plaintiff claims $2,000 damages for defamation of character, and casting imputations upon her chastity. The case is rather an interesting one, and will probably not be off the boards before to-morrow. Messrs. Bennett & Sale and Winans & McElroy appear for the defendant, and Messrs. Cassaday & Carpenter for the plaintiff.

NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY.

A copy of the newspaper directory for 1878, issued by S. M. Pettengill & Co., advertising agents at 37 Park Row, New York, is laid upon the Gazette table. It contains general and special information of 8,615 newspapers. The lists are given by States, in geographical sections, and by counties. There are also lists of classes, such as dailies, weeklies, monthlies, religious, agricultural and horticultural. The book is handsomely illustrated. There is no appearance of any effort to estimate circulation. We have this feature presented in three ways: Every circulation sworn to is printed in full-face; all other circulations which are reported are those given by publishers themselves; and in cases where any doubt has existed in the compiler's mind as to the figures reported, the circulation is omitted. There are many others which do not report circulations at all. The directory is a fair presentation of the status and claims of every paper recorded in its pages. It is full of information valuable to newspaper publishers and advertisers.

TRIUMPHANT ENTRANCE.

Burr Robbins Great American and German Allied Shows Give an Attractive Street Parade—Crowded Streets, but Harmony and Order Prevailed.

Burr Robbins' circus made its triumphant entrance into the city this morning.

At an early hour the streets swarmed with people from far and near, eager to witness the promised street parade, and the side walks all along the line of march were crowded with expectant sight-seers.

The display was a fine one, and amply fulfilled all the promises of the gaudy posters which have been on the boards for weeks.

It was doubtless the most attractive parade which ever was witnessed in this city. Gaily-bedecked knights, and richly caparisoned horses, cages filled with all the obtainable curiosities of the animal kingdom, wagon after wagon they rolled by till it seemed the end would never come. Instead of a mere string of closely closeted vehicles, the parade was a show of itself, and full of novelties.

From the musical pagentry, and the inspiring martial music the were elephants and camels, trudging along, a loose lion complacently lying on top of one of the cages, and women carelessly sporting with tigers and leopards, a living tableau of the Goddess of Liberty, surrounded by her brave defenders in the costumes of 1776, and other novelties to attract the attention of the many observers.

The line of march was from the grounds east on Milwaukee street to Main street, west to Third, thence to Bluff, south to Court street, then south on Main street to Court street, west across the bridge and to the grounds again. The whole line of march was crowded with spectators who in many instances were not content with seeing the parade once, but hurried to other parts to see it pass again. In spite of the jamming and jostling and hurrying to and fro there was no disorderliness, and the usual hangars-on were either absent entirely or else found no opportunity to indulge in any criminality. The police had little to do, and the Justice sat in vain waiting for some victim.

This afternoon a performance was given as advertised, and this evening another performance will take place. It is a fact that Robbins has made a big hit this season, and has the best manager, and strongest company that he ever had, he will doubtless be greeted with crowded tents, not only here but in other places which he will visit.

To-morrow he will show in Beloit, and from all indications he will have an equally large crowd there.

LIFE ON THE WAVE.

Romain Holdredge and James Bristol, two young gentlemen of the city who have lately acquired a passion for boating, went out this morning, decked in their best wools, to see the circus parade, and at its conclusion concluded to try a new shell, which they proposed to purchase for the summer sport. It looked like an easy matter to make such a little boat glide through the water, and they jumped in and pushed off with light hearts. They had only spurred along a few rods when the shell collided with the piles of the bridge, bringing up alongside, and tipping the shell till she dipped water badly. Holdredge stood up in the boat and tried to push the bridge away, but finding it was too stubborn, and that the shell was filling with water, grappled a pile in his desperation, and with an alacrity which would have ensured an engagement with Robbins, shinned up the timber till he reached the bridge above in safety, although his clothes were bedaubed with a diary of his adventure. He mounted the rail then and complacently gazed down upon the struggles of his companion who was not so expert in climbing, and who was rapidly being immersed. Holdredge having viewed him to his satisfaction, rushed around to Heimstreet's got another boat and pushed out to the rescue. He managed to run into the bridge again, but more successfully, and finally gallantly saved his companion from a watery grave. The lads floated down the stream until they found a convenient spot for drying their clothes, where at last accounts they were renovating and completing their toilets.

A DANGEROUS SPORT.

The community is getting full of young Davids, who are amusing themselves with shooting pebbles from a patent sort of a sling. Several narrow escapes from the serious results of this indiscriminate stone-throwing have been reported already. The popgun arrangement for throwing these stones has rubber for its motive power, and are so arranged as to throw a stone with the velocity almost of a bullet. The boys are using them for killing birds, and when game in that direction is scarce, they take horses and even passers-by on the street for targets. Several windows in private residences have been broken by this sport, but it was the only bad result, it would not be as serious. In several instances these whizzing missiles have come in close contact with the heads of surprised individuals, and unless a stop is at once put to the practice there will ere long be some serious if not fatal accident to record. In other cities this epidemic broke out, but the police soon stopped it; and in Janesville life is just as valuable as elsewhere.

The officers are instructed to keep on the lookout, and the propose to make an example of some of these careless shooters, by bringing them before the police court, and having them duly punished. The sooner the practice is stopped the better.

Excursions to the East.

The Grand Trunk Railway Company have issued their Annual Tourists Guide which contains besides the rates for and routes over which excursion tickets pass, much information of value to the travelling public. These guides may be had free of charge on application to Mr. Potter, ticket agent at the depot. Those intending to visit any points in the New England States will find these tickets very desirable on account of the privileges granted and reduced rates.

MILTON JUNCTION.

—Mr. William Paul died at his residence two miles west of this village, on Saturday morning May 11, of paralysis. He had been sick about two weeks. The best medical skill was employed but of no avail. Mr. Paul is brother of Alex. Paul, of this village, a scotchman by birth, was one of the old settlers of this section, and was one of the most sturdy, thrifty farmers in the county. He leaves a large family of children, mostly grown to manhood and womanhood. The deceased had lived on the farm on which he died over thirty years. He was sixty-four years of age. His funeral was attended by an immense concourse of his neighbors, and after short services at the house the remains were escorted by a procession of over seventy teams from the home to the Seventh Day Baptist church at Milton, where the funeral was attended by about six hundred persons. And thus passes away another of the sturdy landmarks of the early history of this part of the State.

—Mr. James Kelly has entered into partnership with Cary & Vincent for the sale of farm machinery the present season.

—Clement Brothers and Forrester will give us another of their side splitting concerts for the benefit of the Temple of Honor, at Morgan's hall, on Thursday evening. An impromptu addition has been made to their troupe since last here in the person of Burton Stanley, the great female imitator and singer. It will be worth your while to fill the hall.

—Decorations day will be observed by the citizens of this community in connection with the exercises in the grove, under the auspices of the graded school, and under the direction of Mr. Curtis, the enterprising principal of the same. Last year about 100 of our citizens united with the school in honoring the graves of our dead soldiers, and it is to be hoped that the entire community will see the propriety and fitness of laying aside the cares and duties of a brief hour or two each year to the memory of our departed heroes. It is thought we may be able to have the Milton band with us on that occasion.

—Mr. Wallace Paul has been confined to the house for some weeks with rheumatism. He is now getting round again, however, by the use of crutches.

—Mr. William Paul has left upon our table a piece of genuine Scotch granite brought on his late return from Scotland. It is of mottled appearance, closely resembling in color and appearance the German mottled castle soap. This species of granite is very extensively used for building purposes in the old country, the city being largely of that material. It is polished by machinery, with a surface as smooth as glass. The legendary castles and ancient halls are nearly all of this material, and it is being imported to this country to some extent to make monuments of. Mr. Paul also left with us a lock of Jane's wool, from the back of a nine-months old lamb, measuring over 12 inches in length, and this is no uncommon growth.

—Uncle Billy Morgan has fairly begun operations in the park himself, and several hands are busy at park building walks and laying out the grounds.

—J. Fort has rented a store at Emerald Grove, and is moving into the same, having rented his place here to Dr. Frink.

—H. W. Coon is getting his stone on the ground for his new furniture store on Vernal Avenue, near the old Abel Burdick house. Merchant's Row being full, business buildings hereafter will naturally stretch out in that direction, along the line of the Milwaukee & St. Paul R.R.

—A special meeting of Dodge Grange will be held on Saturday night.

—The first month of the spring term of our public school closed Friday. In the upper rooms there were 23 registered. Average age, 12. Daily attendance, 33. Termly average, 28. Perfect in attendance, 20. Ethel Brandt, Clara East, Myrtle Trickett, Ollie Hinkley, Jessie King, Anna Nagel, Julia O'Neil, Maggie Paul, Libbie Rogers, Irvin Hinkley, Charley Kelly, Fred McAdams, John Paul. Perfect in deportment—John Paul, Myrtle Paul.

BELOIT.

Rev. D. D. Hill, of Aurora, Illinois, graduate of Beloit college in 1896, preached two rousing sermons in the Second Congregational church, last Sabbath, exchanging with the pastor, Rev. H. P. Higley. Mr. Hill is a man of rare thought, original in his method of presenting the truth, and has that force and warmth of expression which is at once pleasing to his hearers and lasting in its impressions. In sending out into the world such men as Mr. Hill, and he is by no means an exceptional instance, Beloit College is securing and helping to set of the fruit of that good which was sown when, as Professor Emerson once happily remarked "the college was but a prayer."

—The ladies of the Second Congregational church, taking time or strawber-ries for the forelock, opened a beautiful fest at Carpenter's hall, Tuesday evening, which was particularly a large proportion of our public spirited citizens. As this was the first of the campaign in the line of festivals, it was, speaking in green back sense, a very decided success.

—The assessors in our several wards are busily engaged putting up a job on our tax payers for another year. Property will be wonderfully depressed in value until said assessors have closed their labors.

—Burr Robbins is billed for this city Thursday May 16th, and all other business will be suspended.

—And now comes Beloit with her champion walker, the hero, Mr. E. R. Buckridge. It came about in this way, said Buckridge and Nick Moran, each thinking he could walk fifty miles quicker than the other, laid a wager of fifty dollars to be paid to the winner party. The contest took place in Hancock's hall, Saturday, beginning at 11 o'clock a. m. and in just 11 hours and 31 minutes the judges announced that Buckridge had won the stake. A very large crowd witnessed this trial of speed. The odds money amounted to some $75, which also went to the victor after paying expenses.

—Mr. Lathrop, our very popular agent at the Western Union depot, has just removed his family here from Racine and now feels that Beloit is his home.

UNION.

—Union has been treated to a change of weather, instead of rain we have had frost several nights in succession. On the morning of the 13th the clover and burdock leaves were frozen stiff, but the crops do not seem to be injured much.

—Mr. E. Devereux is receiving at his factory over 18,000 pounds of milk daily, which he is making into cheese that certainly looks second to none. The present capacity of his factory is 25,000 pounds of milk and he expects to have that amount soon.

—The Wall brothers have a field of rye that commenced to head out on the first of May.

—Notwithstanding the cold weather a good share of the corn is in the ground ready for warm weather.

—Mr. S. Child started for Minnesota last week.

—Two dollars a year will get the best family newspaper in the State. If you don't believe it try it for one year and you will be convinced.

—Union was well represented at Eli Perkins' lecture, in Evansville, last Tuesday evening.

—F. D. Child has been sporting the latest top carriage in town.

EMERALD GROVE.

—John Kane and Richard Jones have left for Clinton, John to become a painter, and Richard, a carriage trimmer. They have the best wishes of their many friends in this place.

—Persons interested in the welfare of the cemetery, are requested to meet, Saturday, prepare the grounds, trim the trees, and make preparations for Decoration day.

—Mr. Robert More, the Assessor, is visiting this part of the town. Don't forget to let the dog in some old shed, and be sure to muzzle him so he can't bark.

—Rev. G. S. Hubbs, one of the leading ministers of the State, will lecture in the M. E. church, Tuesday evening, May 21st. Subject—"Words; the tales they tell and the truths they teach." Mr. Hubbs has lectured in many parts of the State with good satisfaction. He is an easy and clear speaker, and never fails to please all. Admission—ten cents. Proceeds for the benefit of the school.

—James Dean is confined to his house with a bad case of rheumatism.

—Jack Frost made us a heavy visit Sunday night. It made the early potato "stop short" never to look green again for some time to come. Corn is nearly all planted, but the acreage is not so large as last year.

—A temperance society has been organized in Emerald Grove, the first meeting of which will be held next Sunday evening. A lecture will be given in one of the churches, and an opportunity given for all to join.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are today suffering from the effects of dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existence of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain. Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try its virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all druggists on the western continent.

A Pardonable Pride

Prompts most people to delay, by any laudable means that science affords, the cure of physical decay. Who that is in perfect health would not match the bright eye, the active mind, and other appearances of youthful vigor, with the luxuriance, the rich color and beauty of youthful hair? Parker's Hair Balsam stands pre-eminent as an elegant hair dressing, and by its healthful action on the roots not only promotes a luxuriant growth of the young hair, but instantly restores gray or faded hair to its original youthful color, giving a soft, rich and lustrous appearance of great beauty. No other preparation so effectually removes dandruff or stops falling of the hair; its cooling and healing action entirely curing itching and humors of the scalp, and keeping the skin clean, white and healthy. It is perfectly harmless, exquisitely perfumed, and contains nothing that will soil the skin or gum the hair. It is not a dye, it is unequaled for excellence and purity.
